

Scenes of a Conflict

Use the boxes below to draw or write a summary of four scenes from the story that show the conflict.

Conflict: What conflict are you writing your essay about?	Chinese vs. Japanese Government The Family
--	---

The Japanese government said Chinese couldn't file hundreds of visas. Chinese keeps asking but keeps getting rejected.	The Sugihara family finally decided to obey "God's" word. Let Chinese write the visas anyway against the Japanese government's will.
The Sugihara family go to jail for a year for illegally filing visas on blank visa paper.	When the Sugihara family was leaving on a train for Berlin, Chinese threw visas out the window of the train to give them.

Consequences

Whatever the characters choose to do about their conflicts, there will be consequences. Make a list of possible consequences for how your character resolves their conflict.

Choice 1: IF CHIUNE obeyed the Gov.	Choice 2: IF CHIUNE Disobeyed the Gov.
If CHIUNE didn't write the Visas , then his job along with his family would be safe	If CHIUNE disobeyed the government and didn't write the Visas , then his family would be endangered and his job.

Evaluate: What do you think of the decision(s) the characters made? What does it remind you of from your own life?

Right choice. He will story A miracle currently come history books, his legacy be remembered. This reminds me of our country and how it doesn't let refugees in.
 CHIUNE made the wrong decision in

The characters are	The characters learn	the story teaches
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> * Empathetic for the refugees. * traumatized by their experiences as refugees. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> to care for others especially Hiroki! how to work through difficult times in crisis 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> how brave the Hiroki family is in a depressed time in their lives.
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ruthless and destroy every thing in their path or policy as 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The Sugihara family learns they did a spectacular by saving Nazi's non-mafia's lives by their own risk 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> how difficult life can be for refugees How heroic the anyone can be if their heart is in the right place.

The characters are ruthless and destroy in the way of their policy as Nazis. The Nazis didn't care about Jews or people with disabilities, so they put them in concentration camps. In the camps
there is a high chance of being murdered.
There is a lot of refuges in Poland, that is why there are so many people outside the Sushawa house.

Format for body paragraphs

1. Say your reason
2. Give evidence from the story to set up your quote
3. Write the quote with quotation marks and page number to give a conclusion sentence

Body Paragraph

Swarms of helpless refugees, scrambling to save their lives. ~~The refugees~~ ~~were~~ ~~in~~ ~~a~~ ~~line~~ ~~to~~ ~~enter~~ ~~China~~ let 5 representatives from the crowd into his house. Chune listened to the refugees' ~~fringing~~ ^{fringing} stories and needs to stay alive. "My ^{father} meet downstairs with five men." ... "These people were refugees -- people who ran away from their homes because if they stayed, they would be killed. They were Jews from Poland escaping from the Nazis soldiers who had taken over their country."

2. Chune and his family decides to help the people in need. By doing this they would put the whole family in danger. Filing hundreds of visas against the Japanese government's will. The family didn't know what would happen to them. "My father cabled his superiors yet a third time, and I knew the answer by the look in his eyes." (Page 3) Chune knew he had to disobey the ^{Japanese} government and here the Refugees. "That night, he said to my mother, 'I have to do something. I may have to disobey my government, but if I don't, I will be disobeying God.'"

B.
(S) This man was a true hero his heart was pure, sure he had to go through tough times like when he and his family went to prison. Now China has a statue on the hill of humanity. He was a real life super hero. This man did a really good deed and was rewarded for it. In 1969 my father was invited to Israel where he was taken to the famous holocaust Memorial, Yad Vashem. Then in 1985, he was chosen to receive the Right Among Nations Award from Yad Vashem. He was the first and only Asian to have been given this great honor.

into Ahhhh, Ahhhh, imagine hundreds of lives depend on you and only you, Oh Ya and against your governments will. The Story of Freedom, written by Ken Mochizuki teaches us when you need to be heroic and your heart is in the right Place you can be hero.

Paragraph summary ~~intro~~ intro in this story we learn that Chare helped hundreds of refugees stop to see their lives. We also learn that Chare's family is willing to risk their lives for the refugees. This man was rewarded greatly for this act of kindness.

Big Risk, Big Reward

By Darragh Cahill

Imagine if hundreds of lives depended on you and only you, and you have to do it against your government's will. The story "Passage to Freedom", written by Ken Mochizuki, teaches us when you need to be heroic and your heart is in the right place, you can do what is heroic. In this story you will learn Chuine helped hundreds of refugees struggling to survive. You also learn that Chuine's family is willing to risk their lives for the refugees. This man was rewarded greatly for this fantastic act of kindness.

Mobs of helpless refugees swarmed around Chuine's house scrambling to save their lives. Chiune Sugihara, one of the Japanese diplomats living in Lithuania, wanted to take control of the situation. Chuine brought five refugees into his house so he could see what the rage was about. Chuine listened to the horrifying stories about the Nazi's and how the refugees had to flee from their homes. "My father meet downstairs with five men"... These people were refugees -- people who ran away from their homes because if they stayed they would be killed" (page 2). They refugees wanted visas so they could walk through Russia and end up in Japan.

Chuine's family was heroic too. They agreed to risk their lives for the refugees. By doing this they would put the whole family in danger, filing thousands of visas against the Japanese governments will. The Sugihara's didn't know what would happen to them. “My father cabeled his superiors yet a third time, and I knew the answer by the look in his eyes” (page 3). Chiune knew he had to disobey the Japanese government and help the refugees. “That night he said to my mother, ‘I have to do something I have to disobey I may have to disobey my government, but if I don't, I will disobeying god’” (page 3).

This man was a true hero. His heart was pure. Sure, he had to go through tough times like when he had to go to prison with his family but he persevered through the tough times. Now Chiune has a statue of him on the Hill of Humanity. This man did a great deed and he was greatly rewarded for his great deed. “ In 1969, my father was invited to Israel Where he was taken to the famous holocaust memorial, Yad Vashem. Then in 1985, he was chosen to receive the “Righteous Among Nations” Award from Yad Vashem. He was the first and only Asian to have been given this great honor” (page 5). He was a real life superhero, he had a heart full of empathy.

The story “Passage to Freedom,” written by Ken Mochizuki, teaches people that when you need to step up to a task and be heroic, if you are committed to sacrifice your own needs for others, then you can be a hero. We learn this when Chiune helped hundreds of refugees. We also learned that Chiune’s family was willing to sacrifice their own lives for the refugees. Chiune was a hero and was rewarded like a hero. Would you have made those sacrifices like Chiune and his family did?